

Keep your Impostor Syndrome on Track

Answer these questions naturally,
as you would if you were speaking to a friend.

How did you become an English teacher?

You Say: "I'm an English teacher" -

They Say: "Where are you from?" ... write your answer below.

Do you notice any part of your answers as a justification to your role as a teacher?

Which words or sentences would you change to express a better vision of yourself?

Make those changes and read out your answer with confidence. It has to sound natural, authentic, real. Like something you would actually say to someone who wants you as their teacher or to a new acquaintance.
